The Peanut Corporation of America Plant in Blakely, Ga., is linked to a nationwide salmonella outbreak from tainted peanut butter.

Tough to swallow

Little-known company may be responsible for one of largest food recalls

Associated Press

From school lunches to nutrition bars and ice cream, the nationwide salmonella outbreak has reached deep into the American food supply—even though many people had never heard of the small company at the center of the investigation until a few weeks ago.

The food manufacturer, Peanut Corporation of America, has just a few plants scattered across the South, but it may be responsible for one of the nation's largest food recalls in history.

Federal investigators on Friday said the Lynchburg, Va.,-based company knowingly shipped salmonella-laced products from its Blakely, Ga., plant after tests showed the products were contaminated. Federal law forbids producing or shipping foods under conditions that could make it harmful to consumers' health.

The company has denied any wrongdoing, but said it is investigating.

Before the scandal, Peanut Corporation was a little-known but ambitious company that began in the 1970s as a family catering

SO FAR

The salmonella outbreak has sickened about 575 people in 43 states and may have contributed to at least eight deaths. The Justice Department has opened a criminal investigation and more than 1,550 products have been recalled.

operation.

"We started this business working out of our house in Virginia with my mom doing all the accounting," company President Stewart Parnell had been quoted on the company's Web site.

The peanut processing business grew over the years. The company bought a plant in Georgia in 2001, opened another in Texas four years later and also was running a plant in Virginia.

Belying the ambition, there were problems. About nine months after Parnell bought the Georgia plant in 2001, potential insecticide contamination and dead insects were found near peanuts inspected by the Food and Drug Administration.

More recently, state inspections in 2006 and 2007 found some sanitary problems. After another inspection in October, state officials discovered only relatively minor violations.

However, the most serious issue surfaced in inspection records released Friday by the Food and Drug Administration. The reports showed that in 2007 the company shipped chopped peanuts on July 18 and 24 after salmonella was confirmed by private lab tests.

A Peanut Corporation lawyer said the company is investigating and had no comment on the latest FDA findings. The company previously said it "categorically denies any allegations" that it sought lab results that would put its products in a favorable light.

Parnell's friends and business partners described him as a hardworking, soft-spoken man who had a good rapport with the dozens of contacts he made over the years.

"He had a good reputation," said Jeffrey Pope, a peanut farmer who has done business with Parnell's Virginia plant. "People respected him. He's been in the industry for more than 30 years and he's been a mainstay."

Analysis: Obama may learn from stimulus slips

Associated Press

WASHINGTON On his first big test, Barack Obama made some rookie mistakes and strategic missteps. But he still appears headed for a win on the centerpiece of his agenda, a huge economic recovery program, with the fresh striking of a bipartisan deal in the Senate.

Legislative leaders, including some fellow Democrats who support him, chalked up his problems to inexperience and some initial miscalculations over the lack of GOP support, and they suggest he'll learn from the rocky start.

Americans have learned, too, a little about how their new president works.

He's swung from being conciliatory to badgering Congress to act, from courting the opposition to taking partisan swipes. He's had to fight to keep from losing control of the message. Some veteran Democrats say Obama could have made it easier for himself.

"I think it is important that he reached out. But lesson learned: It would have been better for him to send up his idea of a bill," instead of having House Democratic leaders initiate the process, said Sen. Dianne Feinstein, (D-Calif.).

Still, Obama aides claimed they were satisfied with the results, given the enormity of the challenge. "In a matter of weeks, we moved through both houses of Congress a very complex piece of legislation," Obama senior adviser David Axelrod said Saturday in an interview. "I don't know if there is a parallel in history."

While Obama reached out energetically to members of both parties, he didn't win a single Republican vote in the House. In the Senate, Democrats late Friday reached a deal with a small band of GOP moderates that set the stage for expected approval within the next few days.

Vaughn's love life causing a big stir

There were reports out at the end of last year that Vaughn was going to propose to his Realtor girlfriend Kyla Weber on New Year's Eve. I reported that Vaughn rang in the new year with Weber here in Chicago, but his toast at midnight did not involve a ring.

Fast forward to last weekend, when the "Swingers" star was in town to film the final scenes for his new flick "Couples Retreat." During that time Vaughn had a private dinner party in the upstairs room at Gibsons. I'm told Vaughn was there with Weber and introduced her to people as his fiancée.

Vaughn has brought Weber to Chicago at least three times. He's taken her to a Cubs game and even introduced her to his family. He has also scaled back on his bar-hopping when in town with Weber.

This isn't the first time engagement rumors involving Vaughn have popped up. While dating Jennifer Aniston—after meeting her on the Chicago set of "The Break-Up" in the summer of 2006—there were tabloid reports that he proposed to her. But the rumored engagement never materialized, and the two never made that walk down the aisle. They reportedly broke up in the fall of 2006.

A rep for Vaughn was not available to comment Sunday.

Quinn names vet affairs head

Gov. Pat Quinn on Sunday tapped his 28-year-old aide to head the state's Department of Veterans' Affairs. Iraq War veteran and U.S. Army Capt. Dan Grant said he would build on the progress made by his predecessor, Tammy Duckworth. President Obama nominated Duckworth to serve as an assistant secretary at the federal Department of Veterans Affairs. "We need Dan Grant to take us and Illinois forward," Quinn said.

Ga. man slain in Englewood

A Georgia man was fatally shot early Sunday in an Englewood parking lot, according to officials. The victim, identified as Marlon Turnage, 24, of Oakwood, Ga., was found near E.T. Lounge at 7247 S. Racine Ave., officials said. The victim quarreled with an unknown offender who shot him in the street then fled in a van, according to a preliminary Chicago police report.

Teen arrested in stabbing

Country Club Hills police captured the 14-year-old boy Sunday who had fled his home Saturday night after allegedly stabbing his stepfather to death over a scolding for unfinished homework. The death of John Weatherspoon, 34, has sent a shock through the south suburb of 16,000, which was already reeling from four other slayings in a little more than a week. Previously, there had been only three homicides in the last decade, said Mayor Dwight Welch.

Obamas have the perfect marriage?

Chicago Tribune

Americans, it seems, covet more than just Michelle Obama's green gloves and ability to wear yellow. They also admire her marriage.

In fact, people appear so enamored with the Obamas' public rapport that a relationship expert is now giving followers advice on how to emulate their union.

"There's a definite mystique about them," says Michelle McKinney Hammond, who recently modified her workshops to include a segment on "keeping your romance together, Obama-style."

Hammond, a Chicago-based relationship coach who has sold more than 2 million books worldwide and is considered a leading voice in the evangelical advice industry, said she decided to add the topic after receiving numerous questions on how to emulate the president and first lady's marriage.

"You want to look all googly-eyed at your husband like Michelle does and you want him to look all googly-eyed at you like Barack does with Michelle," Hammond said.

Hammond, who will hold a relationship seminar for singles Friday at Chicago's Park Community Church, believes the Obamas' marriage works because they don't just love each other, they like each other too. She also urges her audiences to look beyond their public displays of affection—remember those inaugural ball kisses and that fist bump in St. Paul?—and concentrate on the dedication they show for each other's goals.

"It's more than just an affection," she said. "A happy couple works as well outside the bedroom as it does inside."

POWERPOINT

Taking the plunge—with no fear

By Alexia Elejalde-Ruiz REDEYE

When jumping into Lake Michigan in the middle of winter, always remember to wear proper footwear.

If I learned anything from participating in this weekend's Celebration of Shrinkage, the Lakeview Polar Bear Club's annual charity plunge into the lake, it is that walking barefoot on ice and snow is unbearably painful, no matter how unseasonably warm it is outside. Veteran plungers wore water shoes or sneakers as they bounded, squealing and cursing, into the lake. I, a first-timer, did not.

It was a gorgeously sunny 55 degrees on Saturday as more than 100 people gathered on Oak Street Beach for the plunge—perhaps not as impressive as diving in amid below-freezing temperatures, but no one was complaining.

I rolled up wearing only sweatpants and a sweatshirt over my white bikini (I know, not the wisest choice). Predictably, I forgot to bring a towel.

Moments before my watch ticked to noon, the crowd let loose a collective holler and charged into the lake. Strangely enough, I don't remember the water itself being so bad—though that could be because my legs went immediately numb. The 20 seconds I spent in the lake were an exhilarating blur. The agony didn't come until after I scrambled back onto the icy shore, my feet feeling like chicken with freezer burn, and lasted until I sat on a pile of snow and put on my sneakers.

My mom was stunned when I told her I'd be doing the plunge.

"Why on Earth would you do that?" she asked. "That's so unlike you."

Indeed. Maybe that's why the February dip into the ice-cold lake was so enticing: It would test my limits, fulfill my New Year's pledge to have no fear. If I could do this, I figured, I could do anything. AEEJALDERUIZ@TRIBUNE.COM

Pay TV providers paying price

Porter McConnell gave up on pay TV last summer after noticing that monthly rates kept creeping up.

Now with no satellite or cable TV, she watches her trusty old TV set with an antenna or she goes online to catch her favorite programs. Once in a while, she buys shows from Apple's iTunes. McConnell also upped her subscription to Netflix's movies-by-mail service so she gets two DVDs at a time instead of one, for $15 a month.

"Part of it is, I've got to economize," said the 30-year-old Washington, D.C., resident.

McConnell is the kind of consumer who makes cable and satellite TV operators lose sleep. While a weak economy invariably makes people pinch pennies, this is the first time that viewing shows online has become a viable competitor to pay TV, making cutting the cord easier.

Cable operators are starting to notice. Glenn

AP FILE

Britt, chief executive of Time Warner Cable, voiced his concern Wednesday in a discussion with analysts.

"We are starting to see the beginning of cord cutting," he said.

It's tough to pin down how many people actually have given up cable—most of the evidence remains anecdotal—and which customers moved to a competitor.

Still, Time Warner Cable, the nation's second-largest cable operator, lost 119,000 basic video customers in the fourth quarter.

This is not to say that the cable business is in trouble. It's a mixed picture in this economy. While there will be some people who will completely give up their pay TV service, many folks will keep the subscription but cut back instead on going out to the movies. They also might give up a movie channel or two and buy fewer pay-per-view shows.

But pay TV providers are right to be alarmed. Not only has a flood of TV shows and movies become available online, but the video quality has gotten better. Netflix is expanding its service that lets subscribers stream movies and shows from the Internet at no additional cost. And more and more people have home broadband—57 percent of American adults, according to the Pew Internet and American Life Project.

Spelling bee winner loses

JONESBORO, Ark. Sixth-grader Morgan Sims knew how to spell "debacle," but she got an unfortunate lesson on its meaning when her northern Arkansas school district forgot a spelling bee entry fee.

Morgan correctly spelled "debacle"—meaning failure, in an often ludicrous way—to win the Craighead County Spelling Bee on Friday, taking home the first-place trophy and a $200 savings bond.

But her school forgot to pay a $100 per-building entry fee to the Scripps National Spelling Bee, said Craighead County School District coordinator Sandra Taylor. The upfront fee is optional for the county bee but is required to advance to the state competition.

The second-place finisher is heading to the state competition instead. Elizabeth Kaffka, a 5th-grader, seemed a bit blasé about her sudden turn of fortunes.

108 KILLED IN WILDFIRES

6 HEALESVILLE, Australia The landscape was blackened as far as the eye could see by the deadliest wildfires in Australia's history, leaving a law officer to guard a checkpoint to a town that no longer existed.

"Marysville is no more," Senior Constable Brian Cross said Sunday from the road leading to the smoldering remains of the town, where witnesses said up to 90 percent of the buildings were in ruins. He added it to the list of casualties from the fire, which killed at least 108 people.

It was one of several towns in the country's Victoria state left utterly devastated by the inferno, which destroyed 700 homes. Some victims were burned in their homes, other died in their cars as they fled. Authorities warned the death toll was likely to rise.

"Hell in all its fury has visited the good people of Victoria," Prime Minister Kevin Rudd said. "It's an appalling tragedy for the nation."

The skies rained ash and trees exploded in the fire, witnesses said, as temperatures of up 117 degrees combined with blasting winds to create furnace-like conditions.

Mandy Darkin said she was working at a restaurant "like nothing was going on" until they were suddenly told to go home.

"I looked outside the window and said: 'Whoa, we are out of here, this is going to be bad,'" Darkin said. "I could see it coming. I just remember the blackness and you could hear it, it sounded like a train."

Report of star's positive steroids test is the talk of baseball, but he and the Yankees are quiet

Associated Press

NEW YORK A day after Alex Rodriguez was linked to steroids, another All-Star offered this suggestion: Make public the entire list of players who failed drug tests.

"I'd be all for the 104 positives being named, and the game moving on if that is at all possible," former Boston ace Curt Schilling wrote on his blog Sunday.

"In my opinion, if you don't do that, then the other 600-700 players are going to be guilty by association, forever," he wrote. "It appears that not only was it 104, but three of the greatest of our, or any, generation appear to be on top of this list."

Rodriguez joined Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens on an ever-growing list of stars tainted by the Steroids Era scandal. Sports Illustrated reported Saturday the Yankees slugger, already dubbed "A-Roid" in the tabloids, tested positive for two steroids in 2003.

Rodriguez, the players' union and Major League Baseball were mum Sunday.

"Alex has been out of the country. I expect him back later today and want to confer with my client before saying anything," agent Scott Boras said.

Meanwhile, one recently retired player wanted to know how Rodriguez's name got out. Sean Casey, who spent last season with the Red Sox, said he felt violated by the leak.

"A little bit, because it was supposed to be a survey test, and those results were supposed to be confidential," he said. "The only reason we opened up the collective bargaining agreement was on those terms."

The list was compiled from 2003 tests, conducted by baseball to see whether the sport had a problem with drugs. No penalties were to be imposed for a positive test, and the results were supposed to remain anonymous. Many players seemed to believe the samples

I'd be all for the 104 positives being named.”

CURT SCHILLING

FORMER BOSTON ACE ON HIS BLOG ON SUNDAY

would be destroyed.

Casey said he wouldn't be surprised if more names were revealed, “especially because of the witch hunt with Bonds and Clemens.”

Rodriguez has always denied using performance-enhancing drugs. When he was approached by SI last week about the allegations, he said, “You'll have to talk to the union.”

Union head Donald Fehr declined to comment Sunday.

Spring Training starts this week, now sure to open under a cloud of suspicion.

Bonds is set for trial March 2, accused of lying to a grand jury when he said he never knowingly took performance-enhancing drugs, and a grand jury is investigating whether Clemens lied when he told a congressional committee under oath last year that he never knowingly used steroids or human growth hormone.

Rodriguez is a three-time AL MVP and the highest-paid player in the majors. With 553 home runs at age 33, the New York third baseman is considered the most likely successor to Bonds' career homer record of 762.

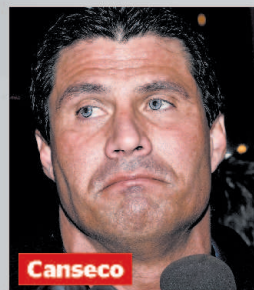

Many in baseball had hoped a “clean” Rodriguez would help push the Steroids Era further into the past by surpassing Bonds. Instead, Rodriguez finds himself swept up in the drug scandal.

Fans were left to wonder: Would the allegations hurt Rodriguez's Hall of Fame chances, the same way they damaged Mark McGwire?

“We can't be shocked by any names, any more,” Schilling said in his blog.

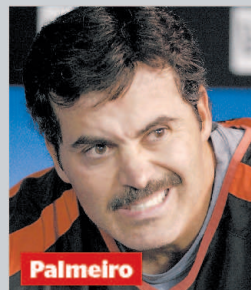

What will he say?

A-Rod has little more than a week to come up with a story before he reports to Spring Training. The first thing he has to decide is whether to confirm or deny a Sports Illustrated report that he tested positive for anabolic steroids in 2003. Whichever course he chooses, here are a few temptations A-Rod should avoid:

Canseco

» Don't write a book, even if a few of your hazy recollections happen to be true (Jose Canseco).

» Don't wag your finger at anyone, even if you've deluded yourself into believing something is true (Rafael Palmeiro).

Palmeiro

» Don't say you don't want to talk about the past (Mark McGwire).

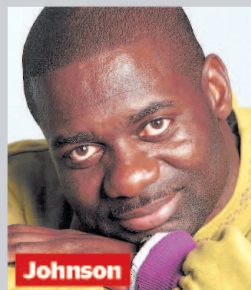

» Don't claim you thought the substance you were taking was flaxseed oil (already used by Barry Bonds).

McGwire

» Don't claim that the substance that tripped the positive drug test was beer, whiskey, thyroid medication, a stillborn twin, whatever (already tried by cyclists Floyd Landis and Tyler Hamilton).

Landis

» Don't claim that somebody spiked your drink (a novelty when sprinter Ben Johnson unveiled it at the 1988 Olympics, but an alibi that's sounded worn-out ever since).

Johnson

» Don't hire Rusty Hardin. The lawyer for Roger Clemens practically dared Congress to seat his client at the witness table, and Clemens has been paying with sleepless nights and hefty legal fees every day since.

What do you think, readers: Are steroids ruining baseball? Send Whizzer your thoughts via e-mail to redeyesports@tribune.com or just text “whiz” and your comment followed by your name, age and neighborhood to 47383.

Et tu, A-Rod?

Say it ain't so, A-Rod. You were supposed to be the knight in shining armor riding in on a white horse to rescue the most storied record in sports from the evil Barry Bonds.

You are the best player of my generation, and maybe of the last 50 years. You used to get mentioned in the same breath as Babe Ruth, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron. Now you will be mentioned with names like Jose Canseco, Jason Giambi and Roger Clemens.

For a long time I've defended baseball players' use of steroids. It shows they are so committed to winning and being their best (as well as pulling in a nice paycheck) that they'd do harm to their bodies. And since they'd be hitting steroid-induced fastballs being caught by steroid-aided fielders, it kept them competitive. It wasn't the “right” thing, but it's hard to blame anyone, let alone demonize them.

I wasn't mad at Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa. I loved the Home Run Chase of 1998. I remember watching them in batting practice thinking it was inhuman for someone to hit a ball so far.

Turns out it was.

Bonds was no different. Whenever he was in town, I would try to go to the entire series to watch him play. He was statistically probably the greatest hitter ever, steroids or not, but I never thought of him as anything more than a baseball-destroying machine.

But A-Rod, he's different. When I was 11, he signed a ball on the sweet spot for me. I thought that it would be like if my dad had Mickey Mantle's autograph and my kids could brag to their friends about it. For Christmas a couple of years ago, I was given an Alex Rodriguez baseball card with a swatch of his game-used jersey on it, which I have kept on display in my room ever since. He was bigger than the game, a legend, and there was more greatness to come. Sure, he's a little prickly and a little too into aging pop stars, but he represented all that was good with baseball.

This one hurt.

The game that I and so many others love so much is a little less lovable.

Again.

Anyone interested in an autographed baseball?

1 Now that A-Rod’s tainted, what non-juiced-up player can break Barry Bonds’ homer record?	O.J. Simpson.	I heard that Barry’s old dugout spit congealed and is batting .318 in Double-A.	If you project Ryan Theriot’s numbers over the next 65 seasons ...	No one will until MLB allows bionic players. We can build them, we have the technology.	I can guarantee you that Alexei Ramirez is NOT on steroids. Only 742 more to break the record.
2 How would you solve baseball’s steroids problem?	First-offense penalty: You have to sleep with Madonna.	Quicker and stronger methods of testing. I recommend steroids.	Out the abusers by introducing backless jerseys. And add a touch of elegance in the process.	I say we hold an intervention at Silvy’s place and invite all of baseball’s friends. I’ll bring nachos.	Mandatory pictures of players with bongos. That’ll make ’em forget steroids.
3 What are you going to do to celebrate the arrival of Spring Training?	Grab my pole and pasties and head to Mesa to make a killing.	Laugh at the concept of “spring” training as my breath forms icicles.	As per tradition, serve my world-famous tobacco-juice mimosas.	Same thing I did when it hit 60 this past weekend: break out the flip-flops and the Daisy Dukes.	Practice getting kicked in the “seeds.” The Cubs will eventually do it to me for real again!
4 How did your driver do in Daytona 500 qualifying?	Who shot who in the what now?	I should have gone with the Callaway instead of the Titleist. I did manage to club Jeff Gordon, though.	Ricky Bobby wrecked his car and ran around the track in his underwear. So, pretty good.	Bo and Luke Duke are still running from Boss Hogg, so not so good.	My driver drives CTA No. 151. He went through 6 red lights, was 12 minutes late and nearly hit 16 pedestrians.
5 How about that Pro Bowl?	Beats Daytona 500 qualifying.	It’s the greatest meaningless exhibition since zzzzzzzzzz.	How about that Pro Bowl? ... You didn’t watch it either, did you?	I wouldn’t know. I watched a tape of last year’s Lingerie Bowl instead.	I’d rather watch the Poinsettia Bowl, the Meineke Car Care Bowl or the Bears play a 17th game.

Just Think.

PRO BOWL

Larry is so very ...

HONOLULU Larry Fitzgerald played as if the Super Bowl never ended.

Fitzgerald caught five passes for 81 yards and two touchdowns, 44-year-old John Carney kicked two fourth-quarter field goals, and the NFC rallied to a 30-21 victory over the AFC.

The Arizona Cardinals' All-Pro receiver, coming off a record-breaking postseason and a spectacular Super Bowl in a loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers, earned MVP honors.

He caught a 46-yard scoring pass from Drew Brees before the half and a 2-yard TD pass from Eli Manning for the go-ahead score with 4:07 to play.

The NFC defense took care of the rest.

Manning, making his Pro Bowl debut, was 8-of-14 for 111 yards. While big brother Peyton had better stats, 12-of-17 for 151 yards and a TD, Eli got the win.

The Manning brothers were the first quarterback brothers in Pro Bowl history.

Carney, who was a perfect 3-for-3, became the oldest player in the game's history.

Sunday's All-Star Game ended a successful 30-year run at Aloha Stadium, with a sellout every year. The Pro Bowl will be played in Miami next year, a week before the Super Bowl. The NFL, which has been looking to increase the profile of the game, hopes to bring the game back to Hawaii.

NFC 30, AFC 21

BRIGGS GETS HIS 'W'

He stopped the Wildcat, played some special teams and even absorbed a few playful shoves from ex-teammate Thomas Jones. Lance Briggs got his fill as the Bears' lone representative at Sunday's Pro Bowl in Honolulu. The linebacker was on the winning end of a 30-21 NFC victory over the AFC, finishing with a game-high six tackles.

"No big deal. I just did my job," Briggs said by phone Sunday night. "There were plenty of other guys making big plays."

Illini pound No. 12 Purdue

CHAMPAIGN Bruce Weber thinks the Top 25 hasn't been kind to Illinois.

The Illini coach said that since the team edged into the rankings in mid-January, it's forgotten to play the tough, smart defense that got it there.

"It was kind of human nature where we started thinking we were better than we are, and we reinvented ourselves," Weber said.

"We just had to get back to what we did and who we were by guarding and playing our butts off."

The memory lapse ended Sunday when the 23rd-ranked Illini knocked off No. 12 Purdue, 66-48.

The Illini (19-5, 7-4 Big Ten) held the Boilermakers to season lows in scoring, shooting percentage (32.2 percent) and 3-point shooting (2-of-15).

"The key for us was our defense and our effort," Weber said.

Sophomore forward Mike Davis had 14 points and a career-high 16 rebounds for the Illini.

HOMETOWN HITS

Houston 6, Wolves 3

The Wolves gave up four straight goals to Houston after the game was tied 2-2, ending Chicago's six-game home winning streak. "We created a lot of chances, we just didn't convert on them," Wolves coach Don Granato said. "They converted on their chances and on our mistakes."

Storm 18, New Jersey 12

Frederico Moojen was playing for New Jersey a couple weeks ago. On Sunday, he was helping the Storm beat them. Moojen scored twice in the Storm's 18-12 win in Newark, helping Chicago end a five-game losing streak.

Former Falcon arrested

Former Atlanta Falcons running back Jamal Anderson has been charged with felony cocaine possession and misdemeanor marijuana possession after being arrested at an Atlanta nightclub, authorities said Sunday. Anderson, 36, a fan favorite who created the "Dirty Bird" touchdown celebration dance, played eight seasons for the Falcons before leaving the team with a knee injury in 2001.

Free & easy

The scoop on scoring freebie food and drinks

By Julia Borcherts

keeping your spending in check can have the unfortunate side effect of cramping your social life. Luckily, local biz owners are putting their own kind of economic stimulus plan in place. It's a little concept called "free stuff." Here's where to score free food, drinks and even a free ride.

DRINK

Witt's 2913 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-528-7032

What: Sip well drinks and domestic draft beers during the one-hour hosted bar at this cozy Lakeview hang. Catch the game du jour inside or claim a spot on the all-season patio.

When: 9-10 p.m. Fridays. No cover. R.S.V.P. required:

becca@wittschicago.com

Risque Cafe 3419 N. Clark St. 773-525-7711

What: Pair up with a buddy and order buy-one-get-one-free well drinks ($5.50) at this Wrigleyville eatery. Hungry? Southern-style specials include five barbecue sliders for $5 and an $8 fried chicken dinner.

When: 5 p.m.-2 a.m. Tuesdays

Goodbar 2512 N. Halsted St. 773-296-9700

What: Double your fun at this corner bar with buy-one-get-one-free shots. All brands are included ($5-$8), so whether you're in the market for budget-friendly or top-shelf, you can still treat a friend (or knock back two yourself).

When: 7 p.m.-2 a.m. Wednesdays

Blu Coral 1265 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-252-2020

What: Score a free champagne toast and $10 gift certificate with your dinner purchase at this swanky Wicker Park sushi spot during their monthly customer appreciation night.

When: 5-11 p.m., every second Tuesday of the month

Mahoney's
FILE FOR METROMIX

EAT

Mahoney's

551 N. Ogden Ave. 312-733-2121

What: There's no purchase required to indulge in the free tater tot bar stocked with toppings such as cheese sauce, chili and bacon bits. Fill up your plate and nosh while local talent takes the stage for open mic night (8 p.m.). Want to get onstage yourself? Build up some courage with $2 cans of PBR.

When: 4-10 p.m. Tuesdays

The Coach House

950 W. Wolfram St.
773-665-5660

What: Grab your pals and munch on free pizza, flip a coin for a half-price drink (tails wins) and compete in a free trivia contest. The winning team (two to eight people) takes home $100.

When: 8 p.m. Wednesdays

Cleos

1935 W. Chicago Ave. 312-243-5600;
2048 W. Armitage Ave. 773-227-6700

What: Quell late-night munchies with the free appetizer bar at this Ukrainian Village mainstay or its Bucktown sister spot. The purchase of one soda, beer or cocktail is required for access to those quesadillas and potato skins—but hey, you'll be thirsty anyway.

When: 11 p.m.-1 a.m. Saturdays

Duke of Perth

2913 N. Clark St. 773-477-1741

What: Buy one entree and get the second entree free at this Scottish pub. Favorites such as the fish and chips dinner or vegetable pot pie (both $9.50) are best devoured in front of the toasty fireplace.

When: 5-11 p.m. Mondays

Duke of Perth

RIDE

Atlantic Bar & Grill

5062 N. Lincoln Ave.
Dedicated phone line: 773-899-4256

What: Want to go out but don't have the spare cash for cab fare? Call the dedicated phone line to schedule a free ride to and from this nautically themed Irish-American bar. Boundaries stretch south to Irving, west to Kimball, north to Peterson and east to Ashland, but they'll consider going farther if there are three or more in your party.

When: 6 p.m.-2 a.m. Tuesdays through Sundays

Pole party

The Dining Room at Kendall College, 900 N. North Branch St. 312-752-2328.

For comfort food like Babcia (Grandma) used to make, head to Kendall College's new Monday Night Dining Series. This week, dine on a five-course Polish menu prepared by instructors and advanced students. Dishes include smoked kielbasa and pierogis, breaded pork chops with sauerkraut and more. BYOB. 6:30 p.m. $38.

Higher learning

Eno, 505 N. Michigan Ave. 312-321-9738.

Want to learn more about what's in that box of candy you're about to give (or get) for Valentine's Day? Head to the "I Love Chocolate" edition of Eno-Versity, where resident chocolate expert and buyer Shara Bauer gives tips for finding raw materials to make your own truffles. Bauer also leads a tasting of M. Lawrence sparkling wine with chocolate-covered toffee from Margie's Candies. 6 p.m. $25.

Flavor savor

Vosges Haut-Chocolat, 951 W. Armitage Ave. 773-296-9866.

Cocoa love gets an exotic twist at the Port and Chocolate Tasting Soiree, where you learn the basics of pairing food and drink by sampling five sweet combinations, such as Taylor Fladgate Quinta de Vargellas 2005 with Vosges' Taleggio cheese-and-walnut Rooster truffle. Also includes gift bags and 10 percent discounts on all chocolate purchases. 7:30 p.m. $30. RSVP required.

Hop(s) to it

Saloon Steakhouse, 200 E. Chestnut St. 312-280-5454.

Learn how the right combinations of barley and hops can accentuate your favorite foods at the American Microbrew Dinner. Sally Selwan of distribution company Louis Glunz Beer, Inc. leads a tasting and discussion of five craft beers with regional menu pairings, such as deconstructed Maine lobster rolls with Shipyard Export from Maine. 7 p.m. $70. Includes tax and tip. RSVP required.

What's in a name?

Chicago Tribune

When Patrick Stickles named his band Titus Andronicus, he didn't do it out of enduring respect for one of William Shakespeare's plays. "Titus Andronicus" is widely regarded as one of the Bard's lesser works, an orgy of betrayal, rape, cannibalism and gruesome death.

"But among plays that double as good band names, it's the best," Stickles says. "I've been in about 17 or 18 bands, but when I finally got in a band that was a little more than a lark, I knew what I had to call it." Stickles, 23, formed Titus Andronicus with a couple of boyhood friends while attending Ramapo College in his native New Jersey. The band has expanded to as many as 11 members for a single show, but the lineup lately has settled down as a quintet, with three guitars undergirding Stickles' vocals. Though not quite as over the top as the play after which he named his band, Stickles' songs aren't shy about broadcasting their discontent.

Most of the lyrics are directed inward, with Stickles working through his disappointments with what sounds like heartsick desperation and the blackest of self-deprecating humor.

EMOTIONAL NIGHT

Jennifer Hudson wins first Grammy; Chris Brown, Rihanna mysteriously absent

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES A tearful Jennifer Hudson won her first Grammy, thanking her family “in heaven and those who are with me today” to kick off an evening already stoked with drama on Sunday. Police said they were investigating double nominee Chris Brown for an alleged assault on an unidentified woman.

At the same moment that the show was going on, Brown was talking with detectives about an alleged felony assault on an unidentified woman the night before. Police records showed he was being held on $50,000 bail.

Brown and longtime girlfriend Rihanna, also nominated, were both slated to perform in different slots of the show, but separately dropped out at the last minute. The victim of Brown’s alleged assault wasn’t identified, and it wasn’t immediately clear whether Rihanna’s absence was related to Brown’s.

Hudson, 27, made no direct reference on Sunday to the October killings of her mother, brother and nephew in Chicago that kept her in seclusion until just this month. But while fighting back tears, she made it clear that her family was foremost on her mind.

“I first would like to thank God who has brought me through,” said Hudson, also an Oscar winner, as she accepted her award from Whitney Houston.

“I’m just in awe,” she said.

Hudson later performed “You Pulled Me Through,” a dramatic song about overcoming deep despair, with the lyrics: “When I was drowning, when I was so confused, you, you pulled me through.” As she sang the last note, she looked directly into the camera and dissolved into tears once again.

The Grammy telecast was filled with eye-popping and eyebrow-raising performances, from Radiohead’s collaboration with a college marching band to a televised black-and-white throwback performance from Jay-Z, T.I., Lil Wayne, Kanye West and a very pregnant M.I.A.

The other big stars of the night were Robert Plant and Alison Krauss, whose unorthodox musical partnership yielded rich rewards as the pair won a leading four Grammys, including record of the year for the haunting “Please Read The Letter.”

Krauss and Plant accepted their awards for their emotion-rich CD, “Raising Sand.” The pairing of the former Led Zeppelin rocker and Krauss, a bluegrass queen, may have seemed downright weird on paper, but the

Coldplay’s Chris Martin performs. AP

T-Bone Burnett-produced album was universally acclaimed.

Plant said “Please Read The Letter” was “an old song that me and Jimmy Page wrote together post-Led Zeppelin, and it’s been given that Nashville touch, and it feels pretty good.”

Chris Brown, Rihanna drama

The absences of Chris Brown and Rihanna put a huge hole in the Grammy telecast Sunday. Rihanna was supposed to sing “Live Your Life/Disturbia” as the second performance of the night, and Brown was later to sing “Forever.” Each was nominated in the pop collaboration with vocals category, Brown for “No Air” with “American Idol” champion Jordin Sparks; and Rihanna for “If I Never See Your Face Again” with Maroon 5.

Brown also was nominated for male R&B vocal performance for “Take You Down.”

Neither won a Grammy, and the Recording Academy found replacements for their performance slots in Justin Timberlake, Al Green, Boyz II Men and Keith Urban as they all sang Green’s classic hit, “Let’s Stay Together.” No mention was made about the switch.

According to a police report, released 90 minutes before the show began Sunday, Brown and a woman were in a vehicle in the ritzy neighborhood of Hancock Park when they began to argue around 12:30 a.m. Sunday. Brown stopped the car and both got out, whereupon the argument escalated, the report said.

The woman, who had visible injuries when police arrived, identified Brown as her attacker, but he had left the scene, the report said. AP

Chicago wins big

Jennifer Hudson wasn't the only singer with a Chicago connection to walk away from the Grammys with some hardware Sunday night. Kanye West, who later collaborated on the "Rap Pack" performance featuring a very pregnant (and polka-dotted) M.I.A., Jay-Z, Lil Wayne T.I., won for his work on "American Boy" by Estelle. TRIBUNE

Other winners from Chicago included:

- » Joan Sebastian for "No Es De Madera," best banda album
- » Bernard Haitink for Shostakovich: Symphony No. 4, conductor (Chicago Symphony Orchestra), best orchestral performance
- » David Frost, Tom Lazarus & Christopher Willis for "Traditions and Transformations: Sounds of Silk Road Chicago," best engineered album, classical
- » Jack DeJohnette for "Peace Time," best new age album

Grammy meter

It wasn't all glitz and glamor at the Grammys on Sunday. RedEye charts the show's ups and downs. REDEYE

Kanye and Estelle

Their shiny getups definitely were weird, but the on-stage chemistry was undeniable.

Dwayne Johnson

In the words of Justin Timberlake, Thank you, Dwayne. The Rock's awkward introduction was a shaky start to the otherwise streamlined night.

BFFs Taylor and Miley

Miley Cyrus said she and Taylor Swift are totally best friends forever. Seriously. It's totally authentic and there's no reason to be surprised that they're friends. They even performed together.

Robert Plant

Is it just us, or is he looking a lot like Mickey Rourke in "The Wrestler" these days?

Jonas Brothers and Stevie Wonder

It was a match made in bizzaro world. Pairing a legendary music icon whose stamp on the industry is undeniable with fresh-faced Disney juggernauts the Jonas Brothers was just weird.

Ryan chats up John on the red carpet

During his interview with John Mayer, Ryan Seacrest referenced the economy and Jennifer Aniston. Seacrest let slip that he and Mayer don't hang out so much anymore—and later Mayer tried to wrap things up early by reading the E! cue cards. Awkward.

Color me happy

MCT

Few things in life can make as substantial a change and improvement than a can of paint. Shannon Kaye, host of the DIY Network's "Fresh Coat," recommends fighting the winter blues by spreading some color—or maybe a fresh coat of white paint—on those walls.

"It's true," Kaye says. Paint offers the biggest decorating bang for the buck, "and it can change your entire room."

Kaye is spokeswoman for Shur-line, a company that markets a line of paint-application and related products for do-it-yourselfers.

Makeover tips

Know your space

Ask yourself why you want to make a change. Do you want to make the space more personal or more functional? The answers will determine what and how much you do.

Trends

While people often shy away from putting color on walls, the opposite is true of our furniture.

"People are buying more colorful and bright pieces," Kaye says.

If you already have a lot of color in your room, Kaye says, then you may consider doing something that has in the past been considered a boring and unimaginative choice: Go white.

White walls are fresh and bright, Kaye says, and can complement your colorful furnishings by not competing with them.

Consider your mood

Kaye recommends spending some time in the room you're going to paint and think about how you want to feel when you're there.

Then think about how color affects the plan for the room.

Finding inspiration

If you want to give your room a paint makeover but are unsure of what color to use, Kaye suggests taking a clue from your furnishings. "I like to take a piece in the room as the inspiration color," she says. "A favorite pillow, art work, curtains."

Take it to the paint store or grab some paint strips and bring them home. Hold them up to the item and see how the color works.

Color test

Kaye recommends picking two to four colors that you like and then pick up some relatively inexpensive sample-size paints.

Paint patches on each wall of the room. Live with it for a few days, looking at it from different angles, at different times of the day and in different light. See how it works with your furnishings and how it looks from other rooms.

If you or someone you know has a history of heart disease they may qualify for a clinical research study.

Radiant Research is seeking men and women age 18 and older who have had a heart attack or have had heart surgery. They may qualify for a clinical research study examining if an investigational medication may help in preventing future heart-related complications.

If you qualify, all study-related care and study medication is provided to you at no cost. Compensation of up to $50 per each visit is available for time and travel to those who qualify.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

Your honey might be stressed out, so step into the role of healer. Don't ramble on about your own problems. Be a good listener instead. The moon says spread a little extra kindness at a time when it will be truly appreciated.

Aries

March 21-April 19

You want attention and you want it now. An intense moon is making you realize that you require more adoration than you've been getting lately. Demand worship, massages and tender caresses from that special someone. You need some sexual healing.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

You could discover that you have a secret admirer—or even a stalker. Pluto is stirring up some crazy behavior in people who surround you on a daily basis. Maybe your boss is nursing a mad crush on you or your roommate fantasizes about ravishing you. The plot thickens.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

Neptune is encouraging you to access your adventurous and whimsical side. Show up on your honey's doorstep clad only in a trench coat, carrying a bottle of vintage wine. Or write a sexy masher note and leave it for that cutie you've had your eye on.

Cancer

June 22-July 22

It's time to break out of your usual bedroom routine. Mars is telling you to get funky. If you always keep the lights on, try seduction by candlelight. If you insist on being in charge, let your lover be in control for once.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

The full moon in your sign could create some melodramatic swings of emotion. One minute, you're obsessing about your ex, convinced that he or she was the love of your life. The next minute, you're ecstatic and completely infatuated with somebody you've just met.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Saturn is creating a lot of challenges for you, and you're working hard to pull things together. Take breaks when you can. Tell your honey that you're going to need lots of massages on demand and some extra praise and compliments too.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You want your love life to improve. No more dating home-less guys or slacker girls. Jupiter is inspiring you to aim for something higher. Even if you don't want a sugar daddy, there's nothing wrong with dating someone whose money situation is more abundant than yours.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You could feel a powerful sense of connection with your partner, courtesy of a psychic moon. Maybe you'll figure out your honey's secret and shameful turn-ons. Or perhaps you'll anticipate your sweetheart's mood before he even gets home.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

The sun is creating some weird encounters. You'll run into your former fiancé at the corner grocery store. And here you thought he had moved to Burma. You'll stumble into your ex-wife at a club and discover that she's dating women now. Curiouser and curiouser.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You've been socially active for several weeks now, but things will slow down this week. Mercury moves out of your sign, and it's time for a rest. Instead of going out on three dates in one night, try going out on just one.

GADGETS Cobra Deluxe Bluetooth Headset

$99.95 at
cobrahandsfree.com

This Bluetooth headset may make you vaguely resemble a telemarketer, but when the sound quality is this good, who cares? Even if you're in a noisy environment like a busy office or a traffic-clogged highway, the Cobra Deluxe sounds nearly crystal clear. And with one button that controls almost every function, this is a headset anyone could use.

RYAN SMITH FOR REDEYE

CBS

TV 'Worst Week'

On Monday, "Worst Week" (8:30 p.m., CBS) wraps up a brilliant, rerun-free first season with an episode titled "The Epidural," which suggests that Jamie's birth will hurt so much it's funny.

FOOD

Dunkin' Donuts Waffle Breakfast Sandwich

Forget McDonald's McGriddle. While they are good, the limp bookends to that sandwich have nothing on the waffle-dimpled goodness that is DD's breakfast sandwich. These are real mini waffles—infused with maple syrup—cradling scrambled eggs, cheese and cherrywood smoked bacon (another new addition). Get one now while they're hot.

PRODUCTS The Body Shop's Strawberry Love to Pamper set

$39 at thebodyshop.com

Just in time for Valentine's Day, The Body Shop's Strawberry Love to Pamper is strawberry-licious. These bath favorites from the natural beauty product line are packed with moisturizing strawberry seed oil. Body Polish sloughs away dullness, leaving super-smooth skin. Slather on some body butter for a luxurious treat. And if you pamper yourself with this set before going out on a hot date, don't be surprised if you're the dessert.

Twitter fashion

REDEYE | MONDAY

We asked RedEye's Twitter followers what they thought of the fashion at the Grammys.
COMPILED BY SCOTT KLEINBERG.

@coutlay Estelle's outfit looks like something Judy Jetson would wear.

HIT
Katy Perry looks pretty in pink wearing this flowery gown with accents.

MISS
Estelle likes American boys. As this shiny disaster suggests, she's also fond of space travel.

M.I.A.
M.I.A., whose due date was Sunday, showed off her swagger in this bold, geometric confection.

Hits, misses and M.I.A.

Those who walked the red carpet at the Grammys on Sunday didn't disappoint. The pre-game festivities featured an array of celeb outfits ranging from the bizarre to the beautiful. Topping it all off, a very pregnant M.I.A. stole the show with her own brand of maternity chic.

@sweetestallbi I really hate the color pink, but Katy Perry looked great and the dress suited her perfectly.

@ginidietrich What is Whitney Houston wearing?

@kpriority Well, it looked like Jennifer Hudson forgot to remove her dinner napkin from her neck.

Steve-O Wonder

It might not be the first time "Jackass" and "Dancing With the Stars" are mentioned in the same breath, but the ABC dancing competition is getting a dose of Steve-O this season. Yes, the MTV prankster who once snorted a ball of wasabi on camera will dance on the ballroom floor, ABC announced Sunday. Among the other "edgy" celebs joining him: Lil' Kim and football legend Lawrence Taylor. Also set to take the floor when "Dancing" kicks off March 9 is "Access Hollywood" co-anchor Nancy O'Dell. As far as we know, she's never snorted a ball of wasabi or broken someone's leg on a football field. But this makes her no less formidable a competitor.

THE VELVET ROPE

Good luck, 'Chuck'

"Chuck" creator Josh Schwartz has one question for President Obama: Where's the love? During a panel discussion at New York Comic Con on Sunday, Schwartz complained that the president's national address at 7 p.m. Monday will pre-empt the latest episode of "Chuck." Obama also is scheduled to go on TV Feb. 16, possibly kicking NBC's spy comedy off the air another week, Schwartz said. "Clearly Obama's first plan as president was to destroy 'Chuck.'" >> Read more at redeyechicago.com/showpatrol.

She's into Jen?

Chyler Leigh is not only a star of one of TV's biggest hits, "Grey's Anatomy," but also of the No. 1 movie in America. "He's Just Not That Into You," the rom-com starring Jennifer Aniston, Drew Barrymore and Scarlett Johansson, among others, earned $27 million over the weekend, putting it atop the box-office charts. Meanwhile, Leigh tells "The Insider" that she wants to name her next child Aniston. Coincidence? Don't bet on it.

My so-called engagement

It was a good "Evening" for Claire Danes and Hugh Dancy, who are newly engaged, her rep confirmed to E! News. The two met on the set of the 2007 ensemble drama and have been dating since. They've kept a low profile and most recently were spotted at the Screen Actors Guild Awards in January.

No-show

Usher was forced to cancel his performance at music mogul Clive Davis' star-studded pre-Grammy party Saturday, the AP reports. Davis announced that the singer had a serious illness in his family. A rep for Usher declined to comment. "Access Hollywood" reported that the singer's wife might have suffered complications from surgery. There was no official word Sunday night.

Wedding bells

"Skating With Celebrities" champs Kristy Swanson and Lloyd Eisler are partners off the ice too: They wed Saturday in San Luis Obispo, Calif., according to people.com. Swanson, who starred in the "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" movie, met her former Olympic figure skating husband on the 2005 Fox reality show, which they won. They have a 2-year-old son.
